

PURPOSE OF NEW LIBRARY IS TOLERANCE

World Of To-Day Library Opened On Union Avenue

STUDENTS WELCOME

Contains Latest Books on Theosophy, History, Mysticism and Psychology

Dedicated in a liberal spirit of tolerance and service, there has been established at 464 Union Ave., a library and reading room. This library has been established by private benefaction, the person or persons responsible for this benefaction wishing to remain unknown.

This library is not denominational nor in any way connected with a religious sect. Its aims are noble, for it aspires to place at the disposal of all thinking people who are interested in the betterment of human relations, such modern books and magazines as will prove of constructive interest. The quarters occupied by the library at the present time, are very comfortable.

People very seldom think of modern problems, especially the relations of the various nations, and create the library. A better understanding is necessary and it is only by means of modern authors, who understand these problems, that a fair idea of the brotherhood of man can be obtained. Thus, in the same spirit the library has been named "The World of Today," and the atmosphere certainly tends to bear out this name.

It is in this spirit of public benefaction and tolerance that the books and magazines have been chosen. It is by no means an ordinary library. Books in the form of novels and literary masterpieces can be found in any library, but books dealing with modern problems and up-to-date scientific books cannot. The library continues, "The World of Today," contains books on Theosophy, Religion, Psychology, Sociology and a host of other subjects but above all, the books are the most up-to-date obtainable. The scope of the library's work is at present not large but its main purpose is not so much in attracting large numbers as in knowing that a few have obtained or solved some deep problem of life which has puzzled them.

To consider and understand your fellow being is the current of thought underlying the chief purpose of this library. For that reason the library is un denominational. Books on all subjects from Mysticism to Theosophy find their shelves and a person entering immediately perceives the air of friendship and understanding that welcomes him. People whose means limit them to the reading of certain books can here find a selection of books from the most famous of modern authors. These books are very expensive and are very seldom read by the ordinary individual, but this library offers all an opportunity to become acquainted with the views of modern thinkers and writers of today.

Are you troubled in mind? The library has for one of its primary aims the instruction of people along these lines which will make them understand and appreciate his fellow beings and thus promote a peace of mind. The library is not only a place to read books in, it is a place of rest for thinking people. People of today do not think enough and that can be termed as another reason for the formation of this library. At present the library is still in the experimental stage but by the interest shown it is evidently formed to stay. Students are especially welcome for they are of the type that would be most interested in such a movement.

The library has just been opened. People are just beginning to realize the significance of this. Books have not yet been put in circulation but it is hoped in the near future to permit this. Mrs. J. T. Gnaedinger, who is the librarian is willing to help any reader in his search for the right book and give him advice on any subject. Many of the books in this library are not to be found in the McGill Library and students would find it to their advantage to at least pay the "The World of Today" a visit.

Modern magazines of a most tolerant attitude are also found in the library. Such magazines as, London Mercury, American Mercury, The New Orient, Magazine on poetry as that published by Harriet Monroe of

Study Group Meets Again This Sunday

Miss R. Rudy Arts '27 and Abraham Kirschberg Arts '28 will read papers at the next meeting of the Maccabean Study Group which will take place Sunday evening at 8.30, at the Tau Epsilon Fraternity House, 302a Prince Arthur St. West. The subject to be discussed is "Industrialism and its Effects on Modern Jewish Life."

These meetings which are held periodically every two weeks are chiefly for the purpose of discussing Jewish problems past and present.

The speakers will show in a critical manner how and to what extent the Industrial Revolution effected Jewish ghetto life and civilization during the latter part of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Those students who registered at the beginning of the year are urged to attend this meeting. Any students who have not registered but are anxious to come are also invited to attend.

REDUCED PRICES FOR FRENCH PLAY

Students Granted Discount on
"Mozart"

EXCHANGE TICKETS

Sacha Guitry, Noted French
Actor, Appears in Presentation

McGill students and members of the staff may secure tickets at a reduced price for the presentation of "Mozart" by Sacha Guitry and Yvonne Printemps at the Princess Theatre next week. Those wishing to take advantage of the offer must secure exchange coupons at the Registrar's office, starting one o'clock today. A discount of 50 cents will be made on one and two dollar seats. All wishing exchange coupons are advised to come early that they may secure good seats; the regular ticket sale starts at the Princess Theatre tomorrow.

The career of Sacha Guitry is an unusually successful one, at 47 years of age he produced his first play, an operetta, which met with an instant and enthusiastic reception and at 48 years of age he gave successful light comedies, Octave Mirabeau, the French critic, immediately recognized his dramatic powers, and at the same time he was the idol, spoiled and adored, of the French public.

Primarily a writer he went on the stage and there Sacha was again acclaimed. Today he is recognized as the greatest French actor. This artist enters fame at an age when the majority of men are not yet known. "The philosophic note in his plays lends them the brilliancy of the rising sun and the freshness of a May day." From an early age he has not ceased to augment his powers.

Yvonne Printemps, who plays opposite him, presents a vivid personality. She serves to heighten Sacha's effectiveness and at the same time she wins popularity for herself. A company of 25 distinguished Parisian players accompany these two.

"Mozart" is a three act comedy with music, written by Sacha himself. It has gained much appreciation both abroad and on this continent.

HOME ECONOMICS TO BE STUDIED

Twelve lectures in home economics will be conducted at the McGill School for Social Workers by Miss B. M. Philip, head of the School of Household Science, Macdonald College. While these lectures are primarily intended for students in the school, they always attract a goodly number of the year's prospective June brides as well as those who have had practical experience in home or institutions but who desire to gain further knowledge of the scientific side of domestic activities.

Subjects to be treated include food in relation to health, the dietetic and economic values of food, planning menus, and family budgets and their use. The course will open on the afternoon of February 4 at 3 o'clock.

Chicago and other types are received regularly. All these books and periodicals are for one purpose, that is to help grasp and realize the significance of life.

The library is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons from 2 to 6, and on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 7.45 until 10 o'clock. Everybody is welcome.

STAGE IS SET FOR BIG ARTS EVENT TONIGHT

Henri Bourassa, M.P. To Deliver
Address

AT WINDSOR

Unusually Large Attendance
Expected at Annual Affair

Brilliant speeches, a good dinner, music and a souvenir program dedicated to the new Arts Building will be some of the features at the annual Arts dinner, which takes place this evening at the Windsor Hotel. All plans and arrangements have been completed and all indications point to a gathering unsurpassed in the history of the Arts Undergraduate Society.

The Hon. Henri Bourassa, prominent member of the Federal House, editor and owner of "Le Devoir" and the stormy petrel of Canadian politics will deliver the principal address of the evening. The speaker, who is the author of many pamphlets and books on Canada's national problems, will have an important message for those who come to hear him. Others who will speak during the course of the evening will be Sir Arthur Currie, Professor Waugh and Dr. J. P. Day.

Freddie Gross' orchestra will play during the evening and will furnish their usual high grade of entertainment. Free cigarettes will be distributed. The specially designed menu dedicated to the New Arts Building, will be another feature.

The complete program for the evening follows:

WOMEN DEBATE QUEEN'S TEAM

Discuss Commercial Spirit
This Saturday Evening

The first intercollegiate women's debate of the year takes place on Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Moyse Theatre when McGill debates with Queen's.

Representing the McGill are, Miss Mayse MacSparran, Arts '27, who is president of the Delta Sigma Society, women's literary and debating society, at McGill, Miss Marian Ross, Arts '28 and vice-president of the Delta Sigma Society is the other member of the team.

The subject of the discussion is "Resolved that the commercial spirit of the America of today is detrimental to the development of the Arts."

McGill upholds the affirmative. The Queen's team is composed of Miss Dorothy Harris '27 and Miss Mary White '30.

At the same time a McGill team consisting of Miss Isabelle Sorlier, president of the McGill Women's Students' Society and Miss Leona Gray, president of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society, will support the negative side of the same proposition against Toronto.

Tickets are sold for thirty cents and may be bought from any member of the Delta Sigma Executive or the porter in the R.V.C., the Union and the Arts Building.

MANY ATTEND

Students from every state in the Union except Delaware attended the summer session at the University of Wisconsin last year.

TENDERS WANTED

Tenders from orchestras for the Informal Dance which will be held in the Union on Friday, February 18, are requested. Tenders are to be sent to the Union House Committee.

Choir Practice For Arts '27 At Union Tonight

A final rehearsal for the Hymn of Arts '27 is called for this evening just preceding the banquet at the Windsor. All members of the class are asked to congregate in the Grill of the Union to undergo a last practice of the song that is to be chanted during the dinner tonight.

The words appear in another column of today's issue and everyone should cut out the lyric and bring it along to the choir practice at the Union. Following a half hour's good limbering up, the entire crowd will board hacks and head for the banquet hall, there to dispel any prevailing gloom with their recently acquired Drinking Song.

PRINTING EXHIBITS SHOWN AT LIBRARY

Various Methods of Making
Prints are Illustrated

The Exhibition of Prints, arranged at the Redpath Library for the purpose of showing the public the different types of prints and the methods used in making them, was opened last Saturday. The three main processes used are, the Intaglio, Relief and Planographic.

In the Intaglio, the printing is done from incised lines or dots which leave the ink on the print raised. There is usually an impression left on the paper by the edges of the metal plate when the paper is pressed down upon it. There are twelve kinds of printing in the Intaglio process exhibited. These are: Etching, dry point, soft-ground etching, aquatint, mixed method, stipple engraving, crayon method, line engraving, steel engraving, mezzotint, photogravure and rotogravure. Each method is carefully explained and the differences pointed out.

The relief processes are printed with raised lines and dots, leaving the ink on the print flat. When the impression is heavy every line is pressed into the paper but there is no plate mark. The various methods used are as follows: woodcuts, color woodcuts, chalcographs, Japanese prints, line cuts, half tone and four color. The most interesting exhibit consists of the prints in color where each color has to have a separate block and has to undergo separate printing.

The planographic processes have to be done with a perfect flat surface and this process leaves the ink on the paper flat so that there is no plate mark. There are only four methods in this class consisting of lithography, lithography in color, photogelatins and aquatone. The exhibition is open to all students interested in printing and old books.

The University Women's Club of Toronto honored Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States, and Mrs. Massey when a reception was held for them recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Massey leave Toronto for Washington about the middle of February.

STATE SHOULD PROVIDE FOR CHILD WELFARE

Miss Charlotte Whitton Discusses International Aspect

SOCIAL WORKERS

Speaker Stresses
Need of Assistance

"Most of the European States have come to the realization that child welfare must be included in their national program," declared Miss Charlotte Whitton secretary of Canadian Council of Child Welfare in an address before the McGill School of Social Workers in the Moyse Theatre last evening. The subject discussed was "Canadian Child Welfare against the International Background."

The fact that the League of Nations decided to make child welfare part of its constructive program was evidence that the factor is assuming an altogether new position in relation to national and social economy. Miss Whitton remarked. She discussed the employment, delinquency, and health of children and treated in detail the different methods adopted by some countries.

Miss Whitton started her address by giving some intimate glimpses of the Child Welfare Commission of the League of Nations. This consists of delegates from all states. Since their attitude was manifestly affected by home conditions it was found necessary to form another group, known as Assessors. These have no vote, so that they are left free to criticize. Miss Whitton, herself was on this Council of Assessors.

They met to discuss the welfare of the child who had lost his parents in the war. This was part of an international experiment. To provide by law for comprehensive child protection was their object, stated the speaker.

Germany, France and Belgium were caring for children in need. Since the war Belgium has not erected another orphanage due to its laws concerning juveniles. By its determination it has provided for children without parents. In Italy Mussolini has improved child legislation. Child hygiene, health lectures, providing for the care of defective and delinquent children under 18 form part of his program.

Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Spain, have come to the realization that child welfare must be included in their national program. Due to the war, these countries realize that they

ARTS SENIORS PRACTICE NEW DRINKING SONG

Class Of '27 Unanimously Adopt
Specially-Written Lyric

ELECT OFFICERS

Gordon, Dawes, Duckworth,
Hart, Russell, and Erdrich
Chosen

ARTS '27 VERSE

Oh, we've tried out your Scotch,
We've tried out your beer,
And your rum without fear;
We've tried out vermouth,
We've tried out Chianti,
And we've tried out the white whiskey
That comes from the shanty.
But for us there is only one drink without fail,
And that is a glass of dry ginger ale.

CHORUS

Oh, Arts '27, Arts '27,
Oh, Arts '27 we will drink
them all down;
We may go to Hell,
And we may go to Heaven,
Still Arts '27 will drink
them all down.

The graduating class in Arts practiced this new drinking song which was specially written for them by Lawrence Hart and Robert G. M. Gammell, and elected important class officers at a meeting held yesterday at one o'clock in Moyse Hall. Miles Gordon was unanimously chosen historian, while Charles H. Dawes was elected to the position of prophet. Jack Duckworth, president of the Arts Undergraduate Society, was elected valedictorian, Lawrence Hart, permanent class secretary and Hink Russell to represent the class on the Graduation Committee. Hink Russell, class president, was chairman of the meeting.

The class song, which has been named Arts '27, is the work of two members of the year, Lawrence Hart and Robert G. M. Gammell. Hart wrote the music and Gammell is the author of the words. It was suggested that the song be dedicated to Sir Arthur Currie, but an honor student in the Department of Economics and Political Science presented the name of Dr. Stephen Leacock instead. Dr. Leacock is head of the Department of Economics and Political Science at McGill University and an internationally famous writer of humorous books.

COMMERCIALS TO HEAR SIR ARTHUR

Next Meeting to be Held on Thursday at 8.15

No announcement has as yet been made concerning the subjects to be dealt with by Sir Arthur Currie when he addresses the Commercial Society at their next meeting, which will be held on Thursday next, at 8.15 in the grill room of the Union.

The society has been accustomed to have prominent men address the members at a series of meetings which are held during the academic year.

Various subjects relating to Commerce are dealt with by these speakers. The past meetings have always been well attended and it was stated that a larger crowd than usual was expected to hear Sir Arthur speak.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the program.

DEED MAY BLOCK COLLEGE'S REMOVAL

Toronto, Feb. 1. — The deed by which property of the MacMaster University here was transferred to Hon. William MacMaster in 1880, may interfere with any possible removal of the University from Toronto to Hamilton, which has been considered by the Senate of the University recently, the Star said yesterday.

The deed indicates that the property cannot be sold on the open market unless a special act of Parliament is passed. The newspaper says it learned that those in authority are not finally agreed as to the wisdom of the contemplated step.

This Varsity Hockey Game

WHAT will probably prove to be the most crucial fixture of the intercollegiate hockey schedule of this season is the Varsity-McGill game that takes place this Friday evening at the Forum. The red men have shown to all and sundry by their wins during their U.S. tours and their victory over the tri-color that there is easily an even chance for them to come through with the title this winter, provided they receive the unqualified support of the student body they represent in the remaining tussles.

At first the clash of several university dances lead one to believe that his unqualified support could not be forthcoming on this Friday night; but, the committees in charge of the various hops have made last minute arrangements to fall in line with the Daily's suggestions that the starting hours for these dances be rearranged so as to allow every possible undergraduate to attend the game. The Med Ball management announce that their party will not commence until after the game, as have the heads of the fraternity dances; and the game itself is being started earlier in order to cooperate.

When the time comes, therefore, there cannot be the slightest plausible reason for not having a bumper turn-out to yell for McGill's ice men Friday. The band is going to be on hand in force, even though several of its members are going to appear in tuxes; the cheerleaders are warming up for a evening's session of pep and yells. As things look now, the "gods" will take on the appearance of a phalanx of gleaming white shirtfronts.

Then it is up to every undergraduate in the college to make plans here and now to be present and swell the cheering section. There is no reason why a record rooting crowd should not be at the game — then it's up to the team to put the finishing touches on a perfect evening.

Fabulae Absurdae XIV

Once there was an undergraduate who was rather a poor fish. At least he thought people thought he was a poor fish, but really his one great drawback was that he had an appalling conscience, and he's more to be pitied than condemned. We will hide this self-styled "poor fish" behind the cognomen Cuthbert.

Now Cuthbert was very fond of a certain girl — a very certain girl. I can't think of a name for her, so we'll leave it out. But Cuthbert was so shy and self-conscious, — perhaps timid would be a better word, — and so unused to the lighter arts, that his progression was somewhat slow. The girl, of course, was the sweetest thing living (I know all this because Cuthbert told me); her eyes were so deep and lustrous, — but the poor lad never knew what color they were for every time he gazed at them his head swam and he lost all perception of things about him; — her smile, oh! her smile was a radiance illuminating all around it — how happy was Cuthbert when it illuminated him! And her silky hair, — but from this you will see that Cuthbert was pretty far gone.

One day Cuthbert bought a ticket for the Plumbers' Ball. Of course he meant to take the "loveliest thing of beauty" to it, but for some time he hesitated to ask her for fear she wouldn't be able to come. But he did and she could and they went. And of course he was supremely happy. You can imagine. You probably would be, in his place. And if you don't think you would, well, you just don't know the girl.

For a time everything went swimmingly. He ascended from the first to the second heaven and bid fair to run through the whole seven. But here his ridiculous conscience came in. He had traded with friends about half his dances. The time came for them to arise and search for their partners. Conscience said "arise", and pointed out what an awful sin it was to cut a dance; inclination said "stay where you are", and a lot besides. And they got up and wandered about in the quest. Now you begin to see why he was accounted a poor fish! Well, they wandered from the Electrical lab, to the Mechanical lab, from the first floor to the second floor, they picked their way along corridors whose lighting was what is commonly termed religious, in short they traversed the entire Engineering Building. And their partners they found not. So at last in

MOHAMMED MACGREGOR.

TODAY we shall have at the Nordics. A murrain on the memory of Madison Grant, Professor Doctor Osborne, the late Stewart Houston Chamberlain, and — we were going to say Friedrich Nietzsche, but we never jump on a man when he is down.

The superstition that a gawky youth with bleached hair, watery eyes, and a silly grin on his otherwise placidly ineane countenance is the cream of creation grew up in the latter half of the nineteenth century. This was when the world started tumbling over itself in admiration of the fat go-getters out of Manchester and not of Sandusky, Ohio. The movement grew, and the adulation of others changed into a Narcissus — like worship of self among the energetic Northern people of Europe and their seed in America. The movement, of course, reached its highest fruition in the Y.M.C.A. and Rotary. The only good thing Mussolini has done is to push the Y.M.C.A. out of Italy. We hope the other inferior nations will follow his example.

Now, as all biology students know, the Nordic theory is the rottenest of all pseudo-scientific rot. We defy anybody to name a pure Nordic who ever achieved pre-eminence in music, in painting, in the realm of thought. A close investigation will reveal that their whole success has come from a servile imitation of their superiors, coupled with Puritanical hypocrisy and unparalleled guile in commercial relations.

The idea that the United States owes what greatness it has to the Nordic race is preposterous. Examination will reveal that whatever is of worth in that country has come from the Irish. In Canada, the same thing would be said of the Scotch, who should never be classed as Nordics, being a paleolithic people, upon whom the Nordics have endeavored, with little success, to impose a neolithic civilization.

The only, really decent nation of pure Nordic ancestry is Germany, and everybody knows that all that is best in Germany is Jewish. Nietzsche, who slobbered at the mouth in his K'ou-tao to the Junkerdom, was the only writer who praised the Nordics with even a modicum of dignity. He, notoriously, was not a Nordic himself but a Slav.

[T won't be long now, John.

Improve The Commerce Department

IN keeping with our policy to reconstruct the university along modern lines the Goose Step respectfully suggests that a course in shorthand and stenography be given in the Commerce Department. Now this is an aspect of commercial education which has been sadly neglected in the institutions of the higher learning on this side of the water. We attribute this neglect to combined desperation and elation they returned to the sitting out. And when the next traded change came along, well, you could hardly expect even Cuthbert's conscience to dash about after people who had apparently hidden themselves, now would you? No, you're right!

The upshot of it all was that Cuthbert reached the sixth heaven. And next day everybody was barefacedly apologizing to each other for cutting everybody else.

Rather a futile story, is it not? Yet its moral seems to be that there is a providence which watches over our Cuthberts and saves them from themselves. Which is not as it should be, for are we not brought up to believe that only the Brave deserve the fair? — E. S. F.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir, — It has been noticed of late through the mediums of your paper that a new club — The Literary Club — has been formed. I understand that this was done with a view of making a more special study of English literature. It is also known that only men of the second, third and fourth years are eligible for membership, and that those of the first are excluded. That is a very funny thing. Why refuse membership to freshmen when they are the ones who really need some view on English literature? surely the English course is difficult enough and a little light on that subsnobbishness. Universities refuse to consider it because of the fact that there are a considerable number of schools in the city who specialize on these subjects already. But we would point out that their curricula are graded for the mental level of immature school-girls.

The Department of Commerce could invest the subject with the dignity of a course and a chair of shorthand. It would be embodied in the University calendar and given a number. It may even be substituted for English literature and History and thus secure large enrolments in its classes.

The advantages of a knowledge of shorthand or typewriting are too obvious to need enumeration. Think of the amount of notes a student could take if he knew shorthand.

They Toil Not, They Spin Not

THERE is no doctrine more falsely prevalent, more assiduously disseminated and inculcated in the minds of the gullible by professional moralists than the idea that it is more virtuous to work than to loaf. The man who idly wastes his time away, drifting along unconcernedly too wise to set himself to labor, is stigmatized by the populace and branded as a ne'er-do-well; a good-for-nothing, a vagrant. He is dragged in by the Polizei, hauled before a stupid judge and sent to a penitentiary for having no visible means of support. Exasperated mothers point him out as a bogey to their children, something to be shunned, a person who has sunk to the lowest depths of degradation to which a man can fall. Syndicated philosophers, such as the distinguished Dr. Frank Crane, or equally noted Bruce Barton fly to their typewriters and in soothing paragraphs turn out inspirational and common-sense editorials on the evil of laziness and on the necessity of living a well-ordered life. Parents are admonished to take good care of their children, for such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

With all respect for the feelings of those who believe in this fallacious doctrine, I say bosh! Who ever heard of anyone accomplishing anything through work? The greatest names in history are those of men who were self-seeking enough to avoid work, to wit, Jean Jacques Rousseau, August Comte, Paul Verlaine, and Edgar Allan Poe. It is notorious that Mirabeau, the greatest of French orators, never spent five minutes preparing a speech; secretaries wrote them out for him and he delivered them. The most profound thinker of ancient times, Omar the Tentmaker, was a loafer. The greatest poet of modern times, Walt Whitman, said, "I loaf and invite my soul." Work is fatiguing to the body, irksome, and monotonous. It dulls the mind and creates dolt and morons. More people die from working too strenuously than from the deadliest epidemic. Work is, in brief, the greatest scourge sent to humanity. Work is the curse of the drinking classes.

Collegiate? Just A Pipe Kiss And Mustache Needed

(BY ALBERTA MAYFIELD)
Pipes, mustaches and kisses! They are all collegiate accessories. There are pipes and pipes. The meerschaum is, so it seems, the favorite. And the girls like it, for it never gets strong. (What! have coeds taken to smoking pipes? Oh, you got me wrong, again!) The atmosphere for this pipe is luxury, for alas! the meerschaum is costly. More particularly adapted to the pecuniary problems of college students is the collegian pipe. It also adds effect and should be used with baggy knickers, slouch hats, futuristic golf socks and hokum jazz. And into this picture the mustache is well placed — that is grown. And the mustache must be properly parted in the middle and arranged five on a side for basketball season.

And the kisses! Three classes are predominating according to the latest osculating authorities. There are the lazy, drowsy smoky kisses when he is garbed in a lounging robe. A sort of peck is the result of a tux — for he does hate to get all myna myna from powder. Oh, but when he dons his sport outfit. Wow! that's when he gives the honest-to-goodness kiss! Of — tribution made in Great Britain and Roumania in the matter of technical education. Between the ages of 13 and 15 numbers of children leave school. These large numbers must pick up some training somewhere. Thus there is a great possibility of technical training and vocational guidance. Fruitful experiments are going on in the Dominion. It all rests upon public opinion to bring interest upon this field of education. We must see that these years must not be wasted."

The Children Protection Act of Ontario passed 30 years ago, was a piece of broad legislation, with generous concessions. These are a tribute to the man who drafted the Act. Speaking on Juvenile delinquency, Miss Whitto declared that Canadian law was the finest and most generous. But there were courts in cities and not in the rural districts, where children are sent to jail. This might account for the increase in delinquency.

In closing the lecturer stated that there was need for scientific research for knowledge, for a broad and comprehensive understanding, in order to develop a program of treatment for these problems.

VARSITY GAME ON FRIDAY CREATING GREAT INTEREST

Dancers Will Witness Game Before Attending Various Affairs

BACKS TO THE WALL

Defeat Means Possible Elimination; Band Will be on Hand

What bids far to the biggest event of the hockey season as well as that of the social season will take place on Friday evening when the McGill senior squad act as hosts to the varsity men at the Forum. The support of the student body and of amateur fans generally, that has been lacking in previous games will in view of the rising tide of sentiment be accorded the small band of red-shirted warriors on Friday night who will be fighting with their backs to the wall for the first championship in over a decade.

The committee in charge of both fraternity dances scheduled for Friday evening have already signified their intention of seeing that all those present at their dances come to the affair after the game, and the consensus of opinion among those attending the Medical dance is to see the game first, then dance.

The match is creating more than ordinary interest and it is doubtful whether any student will be seen anywhere on the campus or in fact anywhere else except at the Forum between the hours of 8.30 and 11. A big contingent of amateur fans and alumni are expected to make their appearance and the match will undoubtedly be one of the greatest athletic spectacles of the season, not expecting the rugby matches.

Reports from Toronto show that the blue realize the test before them and are striving every effort to be at top speed. Coach Smythe's aggregation have won over at their intercollegiate union rivals thus far and the redbirds claim that the blue are scheduled for defeat either at the hands of McGill or U. of Montreal. Whitehead and Kirkpatrick are playing at the top of their form and with a wealth of forward material in Dunne, Richards, King and Sinclair, the outlook is that Varsity will be almost as strong as it has been in the last few years.

The McGill squad had a workout last night and the boys are practising hard to be on edge for the game. They are determined to gain a victory over the strong blue team and win on Friday night practically means the blue white defeat means elimination. Adams a product of the interclass league, a showing promise and is being groomed to bolster the defense.

Harold McGerrigle, brilliant McGill defenseman for the last two years will play his last game for the red and white on Friday night. The expert pokechecker leaves on February 11 for Princeton the move being the culmination of a threat for more advanced work in geology. McGerrigle too is making every effort to be on edge for the game both on account of the fact that his opponents will be Varsity and because it will be his final intercollegiate appearance in a red sweater.

It has been decided that the band will attend the match thus lending additional color to the fray, altogether creating a spectacle that bids fair to be on one long remembered by those who attend.

YOUNGER FISHMEN COMPETE THURSDAY

Aspirants to Senior Team Eager to Win Positions

(By the Natatory Nymph)
Youthful enthusiasm is at its pitch today for the Junior Swimming team is to meet the Montreal High School tomorrow night at the K. of C. Tank. Youth is the time for ideals and the McGill Juniors are no exception. If all the keenness can be turned into first places then there will be no fear as to whom the highest points will go. Coach Vernet has been looking after his boys with a fatherly eye and has given them the necessary hustling and admonition.

Murderers are said to haunt the scene of their foul deeds. Les Parsons was down at the practice on Monday night after making a big effort to come from Chicago. His presence inspired the younger men to great heights. It would be a good thing if one of the Graduates could come down each week. It would mean a lot to the teams as a whole. To see Parsons at his old tricks, as he did last year when he was the captain of the championship polo team, was a joy to a pair of tired arms and legs.

The High School team is nothing to be overlooked for in the main they represent the junior team of the M.

Down To Brass Tacks

With D. A. L. MacDonald.

ON WITH THE DANCE.

Friday's hockey game, when Varsity comes here to play McGill in what may prove to be the turning point in the 1927 intercollegiate hockey race, promises to be the social event of the season. Not only have the two fraternities who are having parties that night declared that they will be there to a man, but word now comes that the Meds are also contemplating attending the game. Most of the merry-makers say that they will bring the ladies to the rush seats in the south section so that on Friday the peanut circle will witness the most unusual sight of rows of white shirt fronts and gaily garbed girls. The band will also be in attendance and even among the tooters, it is rumoured an occasional starched front will appear.

Arrangements are now being made by which it will be possible for every ticket holder to the Medical hop to take in the hockey game and still get to the dance on time. The committee in charge have promised that the music will not start before a quarter of ten and the hockey management are doing their part by starting the game half an hour earlier. The first fixture, then, will begin at eight o'clock and the game will be over by nine-thirty at the latest. Besides the revellers referred to in the above, it is expected that the entire student body will be on hand when the referee calls the two teams together for the opening fireworks. If any one of the student body is not interested in hockey, the sight of starched shirt fronts and open cloaks sitting in the peanut circle ought to be enough to draw him there.

GOOD SUPPORT.

The above is sufficient proof that the student body is behind the hockey team. Much of the credit must go to the Medical dance committee for postponing the hour of starting so that every one attending the party will also be able to get to the game. The hockey club executive too are doing their bit by starting the game early and the band, not to be outdone, are going over twenty strong, even if some of them have to play in their tuxedos. McGill is no rah rah college, but at least when its team goes into a crucial game, the student body is behind it to a man. See that you are there, too.

NOT SO GOOD.

The account of the doings of the rules commission in Toronto last Saturday as we read them over our grapefruit on Monday morning rather perplexed us. After carefully weighing matters, they made the following changes in the code book: revision of penalties, change of the method of converting touches and a new penalty for the use of the forward pass. The big weakness in the game, the uneven strength of the attack and defense, was ignored completely, or at least no effect was made to remedy it. The onside kick which was proven to be such an ineffective play during the past season was kept in the book, and the motion for the onside pass and other beneficial changes was thrown out.

The rule governing the convert now is that the kicker must place a drop over the bar anywhere behind the thirty five yard line although he may choose a position directly in front of the uprights if he so desires. Last year, out of thirteen touches, only three were converted from the twenty-five yard line and on wet days the ball never came near the uprights. That the 1927 crop of dropkickers can do the trick from the thirty-five seems to be optimism in the extreme. They should give a bowler hat as prize to the first one that does it.

Some time in the near future, the convert will disappear from Canadian football. At the present time, it has very nearly reached that stage.

The new rule governing the forward pass is a good one. Under the new ruling, the penalty for use of the pass is a loss of one down and ten yards from the point where the pass was thrown. Under this regulation, a team making fifty yards and then spoiling it by the pass will at least get credit for forty of them. Again, the rule that when a man is sent to the penalty bench, it will be for dirty play, seems to be a good innovation. Benching a player for holding is hardly fair to the man when most people think that he was sent down for making a man's laughter, or some such heinous offense. Loss of yards is just as effective and far fairer to both sides.

SKATING PRACTICE ATTRACTS CO-EDS

Fancy Skaters Hold Successful Practice in Hollow

A large turnout of fancy skaters featured yesterday's practice of the Fancy Skating Club in the Hollow Rink. In addition to the male members of the student body, there were present several members of the R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. as well as some of the staff.

The hours definitely assigned for the use of the club on the rink in the Hollow are:

Tuesday: 5-6 p.m.
Wednesday: 8.20-9.20 p.m.
Thursday: 5-6 p.m.
Saturday: 3-4 p.m.

Membership in this club is open free of charge, to members of all faculties including the McGill School of Physical Education and the R.V.C. The club is also open to those connected with McGill, other than students, on payment of a fee of $3.00 for the season. An instructor, Mr. D. Burke, will be present during all the above mentioned hours. Music will be provided at the practice tonight and it is hoped that there will be music at all Wednesday practices hereafter.

A.A.A. The names of Bourne, Gilday and Clouston were familiar to the juniors when they were competing in the polo league and now they will have the opportunity to meet them in the speed events. Bourne has a name to which he can live up to with the greatest of ease and his associates are in no way any less in degree. This is not a note of pessimism for McGill has man for man to match up against them. Goddard, Rose and Gilman performed with the approval of all at the Interfaculty meet on Thursday last and they can be expected to continue in this good line.

The Juniors have not had a polo game since the fall but they have assisted their bigger brethren in some of the events since and have proved a great asset. Perhaps the one outstanding is Thorne, who put in the only tally of the game against the Grads and thereby gave McGill their first victory over the Dominion Champs this season. It is hoped that there will be more to follow. For the Juniors there is every chance that there will be a selection to travel as a spare on the team to Toronto and so it is up to the Juniors to do their utmost in this meet.

ARTS SOPHS WIN OVER THEOLOGS

1-0 Victory in Fast Inter-class Hockey

One of the fastest inter-class hockey matches witnessed yet this season was played yesterday when the "fighting Theologs bowed to defeat before the fast-skating Arts Sophomores. When the final whistle blew the score stood one to nothing for the Arts men. As the score shows, the game was close throughout and it was only due to the stellar net-minding of Gilbert Sherman that the Theologs failed to score. One of the features of the game was the stick handling of Herscovitch who played his first game for the Arts team.

Owing to the cold weather the ice was hard and smooth resulting in a fast game being played. The first period was scoreless as both teams tightened up on the defence. The game started with the Theologs forcing the pace, Sherman stopped several wicked shots in quick succession. Craymer, the stellar defenseman on the Theolog team used the boards to advantage, but each time he made his way down the ice he was stopped by the Arts defence. The men tired fast owing to the fast going and both teams used subs frequently.

The second period opened with the Arts wings sweeping down upon their opponents. Early in the period, Jones, Arts left-winger sent an easy shot from centre ice which fooled the opposing goalie, passing clear into the nets. The goalie had either failed to see the shot, or had not attached much importance to it.

The Theologs then fought hard to overcome the lead, staging several rushes which were unsuccessful. The game ended with Arts staging another of their brilliant attacks. There was only one game played as the Science III-Arts III.

Game has no bearing on the championship.

BOXERS STAGED FAST BOUTS IN ELIMINATIONS

Four Bouts Won On Decisions--Schleiffer Won By Technical K.O.

TWO BOUTS REMAIN

Finals for College Title Set For Saturday in Union

Five fine elimination bouts were fought yesterday afternoon in the M.H.S. gym before a throng of highly interested spectators, who were plainly enthusiastic over the showing made by these aspirants to intercollegiate boxing honors. Only two bouts remain before the finals and they will be held tomorrow at the same time and place. Most of the contestants showed fine form and McGill should have a real team to carry the red and white colors into the assault at arms here later in the month.

In the first bout, Baldwin got the judges decision over Barker in the 135 lbs. class. The winner showed excellent style and his defense was particularly strong. Barker put up a good fight but he should avoid excessive swinging. This bout was very interesting to watch as it was clean and open, both fighters showing no inclination to clinch.

The next encounter was perhaps the closest of the day. Gillard, the battling Theolog, outpointed Freedman of Arts 20 who put up a splendid exhibition against his older opponent. Gillard was on the offensive for most of the way and he should go far as he has no outstanding weakness. Freedman was apt to be a bit wild in the close exchanges of which there were many, while Gillard excelled at

JUNIORS AND SENIORS

The attention of all upper years is drawn to the interclass basketball league now in the process of formation. If the following classes intend entering they must leave a note addressed to the Manager at the "Daily" office today without fail.

The classes:—
Arts 3; Commerce 4; all upper classes in Dentistry; Medicine 5; and any other classes whose names may have been inadvertently omitted.

Infighting with a devastating right that earned him many points.

Sol Schleiffer, who has already won the flyweight title through lack of an opponent, continued on his merry way by earning a technical knockout over Henderson, in the 115 lb. class. The champion was almost unhittable while he packed a mean wallop in both fists. The referee stopped the bout half way through the last round to save Henderson from further punishment. The latter fought gamely but he lacked enterprise and could improve if he was more aggressive.

After the lighter men had made their bow, Gordie Hughes and Hemmery appeared to settle their argument in the 160 lb. class. They sparred cautiously at first and then Gordie took the offensive and kept up the pressure to the final gong rang. His superior height and reach were a great advantage but Hemmery's agility forced him to miss continually, and it was at close quarters that the title holder was at all certain.

Ney Gordon, McGill star flying wing, demonstrated his versatility by getting the verdict over Alex. Cowan in the light heavyweight division. It was a very interesting bout to watch but neither man appeared to be in the best shape, and both were groggy at the close. Cowan opened well and forced his opponent during the first round but after Ney had found his

UPPER YEARS FORM BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Six Teams Entered at Organization Meeting Yesterday

LAST CHANCE TODAY

Knock-out Schedule — Winners Meet Fresh-Soph Vectors—Join at Once

Six teams definitely decided to enter the upper class interclass basketball league at an organization meeting held in the Union last evening. At least one more class is expected to announce its intention of becoming a member of the circuit today. Those years who signified their intention of joining yesterday are Arts 4, Commerce 3, Medicine 3, Medicine 4, Science 3 and Science 4.

The schedule will be a "knock-out" one, in other words as soon as a team is defeated it is eliminated. Practices will begin next Monday and as the regular schedule of games does not commence until a week from Tuesday each squad will be enabled to have two work-outs before its initial game. Attention of all classes is drawn particularly to the fact that all members of every team must be physically examined before participating in any game. Failure of any team to have any one, or more men on the floor who have not been examined will mean that the game will be automatically defaulted to their opponents.

The winners of the upper-class league will play off with the victors of the freshman-sophomore circuit for the college championship. Those classes who desire to enter the league must decide to do so today and may

Law II and Arts II, to Break Tie For Lead Tomorrow

Four more games in the Interfaculty Basketball Schedule were played last night in the Montreal High gym. Arts I defeated Med. II, 41 to 10; Comm. I downed Science 3, 26 to 13; Arts II B.A. won from Science II, 23 to 7; and the fast-travelling Comm. II easily bettered Med. I, 26 to 15. Law II won by default from Arts II, B.Sc. All games were of the usual brand of basketball, and lacked in penalties.

FIRST GAME

In the first encounter, Arts I defeated Med. II, 41 to 10. As the score indicates, this affair was somewhat one-sided. The doctors scored all their points in the first half, and were absolutely unable to net a basket in the final period. The Arts players demonstrated their usual excellent type of basketball, and their shooting was deadly. A newcomer to their team, Fagenbaum, star forward in last year's interscholastic league, made a very creditable showing, and netted 10 points in four minutes. Peacock, Mendels, Norris, and Halpeny also played well for Arts I. Cole and Brotman were outstanding for Med. II.

QUEEN'S LADIES TO PLAY MCGILL HERE

Will Meet M.S.P.E.-R.V.C.
Team, Feb. 19, at Forum

Less than two weeks remain before a combined team of students of the Royal Victoria College and the McGill School of Physical Education will battle for intercollegiate hockey honours against Queen's University women. This exhibition match is scheduled for February 19, at 4 o'clock and will be played off in the Forum.

Two years ago a team composed of R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. students met Queen's at Kingston and made a creditable showing in the match. The hard-fought contest resulted in a tie calling for a play-off, which terminated in a 2 to 1 victory for Queen's.

From every indication the McGill team is not entirely devoid of confidence in the outcome of the approaching contest. It has been remarked that the M.S.P.E. attend frequent hockey practices and are proving themselves very apt at the art of stick-handling. Moreover, now that the inter-year matches of R.V.C. students are in the process of being played off it is found that more students than formerly make their appearance at the practices so as to qualify themselves to play on their respective class teams.

Two of these inter-year matches have been contested already as well as a game between the M.S.P.E. and R.V.C., the first of this season's games by the Montreal Women's Amateur Hockey League. In spite of the deplorable condition of the ice, both teams displayed good hockey, all players showing enthusiasm and continual improvement.

Tickets for this exhibition match are now on sale and may be obtained for the small sum of 35 cents from R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. hockey managers as well as at the Union Tuck Shop.

SECOND GAME

Comm. I succeeded in downing Science I, 26 to 15, in a hard-fought battle. Both teams were evenly matched, but one could easily note that the Commercial's were more effective at shooting. Taylor, star forward for Comm. I, was by far the best man on the floor, and netted 11 points for his team. Robbins and Wallack were also outstanding players for Comm. I, while Montgomery was efficient for Science I.

THIRD GAME

Under the wise directions of manager W. Cohen, Arts II B.A. completely mastered Science II, 28 to 7. The scientists were off-color and were "easy meat" for the winners. Gelfand, the wily forward, netted four of the most beautiful shots of the evening; all passing clean through the rim of the basket. Debrofsky and Slapack played a stellar defensive game; while Apter and Beatty were noticeable for Science II.

FOURTH GAME

In this game, the fast-travelling Comm. II defeated Med. I, 26 to 15. The doctors have thus lost five straight games, and hold the cellar position. The Comm. II team were by far the superior of the two in combination, speed, shooting and checking. As for the doctors, their points all came from long shots; very "fluky" indeed. Consiglio, Banks, and Russell played well for the winners, while Freedman was outstanding for the doctors.

The matter was not discussed at the meeting. All those who will be present at the Art's Banquet this evening are asked to clip the song from the Daily and bring it along tonight.

The singing practice held in Moyses Hall yesterday was highly successful, it was pointed out by those in charge. The meeting was to have been held in Room 13 of the new Arts Building.

but inasmuch as the acoustical arrangements were eminently satisfactory the scene was transferred to Moyses Hall where a piano was procurable. Lawrence Hart played and Dave Legate led the community singing.

It was decided at the meeting, also, to bring down the Arts '27 banner at the Banquet tonight. Harold J. Erdreich was chosen as senior basketball representative. Gammell, who was nominated for the post, declined because of the pressure of studies. Sims refused nomination for the same reason.

The elections resulted as follows: Historian—T. Miles Gordon. Prophet—C. H. Dawes. Valedictorian—J. M. C. Duckworth. Permanent Class Secretary—Lawrence Hart. Representative to Graduation Committee—Hink Russell. Basketball Representative—H. J. Erdreich.
